Tsinghua China Law Review (TCLR), ISSN: 2151-8904 (cite as Tsinghua China L. Rev.), is the first student-run organization that publishes a journal of legal scholarship on Chinese Law internationally. The organization is a collaborative effort between foreign and Chinese students from the Tsinghua University School of Law. Student editors make all editorial and organizational decisions to carry out day-to-day operations. TCLR is formatted according to the Bluebook, a widely followed authority for legal citation in the United States. It is printed by Joe Christensen, Inc. in Lincoln, Nebraska, U.S. and distributed across the globe biannually, publishing articles by professors, judges and practitioners on the legal issues pertaining to China.

Subscriptions

Annual subscriptions (Fall and Spring issues) to the hard copy of TCLR are available for $48 USD or 325 RMB. For details about subscriptions, please visit our website at:

<http://www.tsinghuachinalawreview.org>

Submissions

Authors from all backgrounds and jurisdictions are invited to submit articles on topics relating to Chinese law to TCLR. In our effort to promote focused and effective legal scholarship, we prefer submissions that are fewer than 30,000 words in length. Submissions longer than 30,000 words will be accepted for publication in exceptional cases.

Permission

For information on how to request permission to reproduce articles or information from this journal, please email us at: tclr@tsinghua.edu.cn.

Disclaimer

Statements of fact and opinion in the articles in TCLR are those of the respective authors and contributors and not of TCLR.
